

The Four Liveries Lecture Thursday 12 September 2019, 6-9.30pm at Painters' Hall

The Spectacle Makers' Company is pleased to be hosting this year's Four Liveries Lecture, to be given by Professor Tara Moore of Ulster University

"The Tailor of Ulster, Bacterial Scissors for Designer Genes and Restored Sight"

Professor Tara Moore is Professor of Personalised Medicine at Ulster University, where her research team concentrates on genetic treatments for inherited eye disease. She is also an international expert in forensic science and microbiology and holds not just her university chair but also the role of Chief R&D Officer for Avellino Labs in San Francisco, USA. At weekends, she is the mother of seven children and (apparently) a mediocre polo player.

Tara's commitment to education is equal to that of her passion for advancing medical research. You will not need a PhD to appreciate the lecture – there will be something here for anyone interested in how science casts light on human existence and makes a difference to our lives.
